Local Area Information

Cerrigydrudion (also known as Cerrig-y-Drudion) is to be found on the high moorlands in the county of Conwy, North Wales. The village straddles a set of crossroads linking the agricultural communities of this Welsh-speaking area of north Wales. One road the busy A5 is the historic coach road that links London to Holyhead. While the B5105 links the moorland uplands of Hiraethog to the pastoral plains of the Vale of Clwyd. The B4501 that cuts through the village links the heartlands of Denbighshire via the Denbigh moors and the Hiraethog reservoirs to the old county of Meirionethshire and the market town of Bala.

Llyn Brenig is just a short drive, some 4 miles, from Cerrigydrudion, while Bala Lake and the White Water Rafting Centre is but 7 miles or so from the village. The inland holiday resorts of Llangollen, 19 miles, and Betws y Coed, 12 miles, are also within an easy driving distance from the village. Mountain Bike Trails are to be found in the Gwydir Forest at Penmachno.
