Park Description

Bagnol Caravan Park is a holiday park based in Trearddur Bay, on the west coast of the Isle of Anglesey. The park is within walking distance of a marvellous sandy beach, with interesting coves, where you can spend each holiday absorbing the stunning natural landscapes of the North Wales Island. Bagnol Caravan Park is home to 161 static caravan pitches, each with its own spectacular view toward the sea. There is also the facility for camping, tourer caravans and motorhomes at the park. Unique to the park is a set of wooden carvings by Australian sculptor Andy Hancock. You will find these sculptures throughout the park taking form as animals and birds, made from solid wood. A true unique feature of the park.

This particular area of Anglesey is perfect for those who enjoy fishing, with fresh bait available daily from the local suppliers. If fishing isn't for you, there are many walking trails, both beach and headland footpaths, which allow you to explore the island at your own pace.
